

You find £20 in the street on your way home from school.

Someone offers you a job but says they won't bother applying for a work permit for you because it's too much paperwork.

You buy a pair of trousers, wear them once and find the seams have come apart.

You watch someone robbing someone in the street.

You want to photocopy something. The librarian's told you that you're only allowed to copy one chapter of a book, but you need two to do your homework. She's not watching.

Someone sends you something in the post you didn't ask for.

Someone says something racially abusive to you when you're walking to the shops

You're in a shop and you see someone put something straight into her own bag. You think she's going to steal it, but you're not sure.

Your boyfriend/girlfriend tells you he/she raped his/her ex.

A friend tells you her parents are abusing her physically and sexually.
